GENERAL HARRISON'S CALLERS.

Dates for Various Delegations After His Visits

Clayton Next Thursday.

Yesterday was a quiet day at General Harrison's home, and the general spent most of the time in reading and writing. Gen. Thomas H. Nelson, of Terre Haute, made a brief call in the evening, in company with Judge Martindale.

The general will have a comparatively quiet time of it until Thursday next, when he goes to Clayton to attend the reunion of his old regiment, the Seventeenth Indiana. This will be a big day in Clayton, and an attendance is expected from all the surrounding counties. Returning to Indianapolis on Friday, he will prepare himself to meet a steady stream of visiting delegations. On Friday, the 14th, the G. A. R. men of Chicago will be here. On the 15th the Irish American Protection Club, of Chicago, and a delegation from New Albany will call on him. There will be two delegations also on Tuesday, the 18th—one from Kentucky and the other from Vermilion county, Illinois. Delegations from Grundy and Iroquois counties, and that of the State, will be here on the 19th, and on the 21st delegations from Randolph county, and Dayton, O. The Tipton veterans of Columbus, O., will call on the 22d, and on the same day there will be a delegation from Tipton county. On the 29th the Cleveland, O., Republican Club will be here.

Has Filled His Band.

Christian Brink, recorder-elect of Marion county, filed his band with the County Commissioners yesterday. His surtises are Albert Gall, Fred Rush and Louis Hildner. He goes into office next month.

HOVEY, A BRAVE SOLDIER

His Courage at Champion Hills Indorsed by Those Who Were with Him.

Col. Thomas H. Nelson Gives an Encouraging Account of His Recent Observations of the Canvass—Other Political Matters.

Gen. George H. McGinnis is an ardent admirer of General Hovey, having been with him two years during the late war. At Shiloh, Champion Hills and through the entire Vicksburg campaign they were in the same division. When a reporter of the Journal last night referred to the malicious attack on the General, in charging that he failed as a soldier at Champion Hills, General McGinnis said with emphasis: "It is as absurd a campaign lie as it is untrue. I was in the same division with him in that battle and there was not an indication of any cowardice whatever on his part. I read a few days ago an article stating that General Hovey allowed 1,200 men to be unnecessarily slaughtered through his stupidity and bad generalship. The editor even went so far as to quote from Grant's Memoirs, in which not a word is said about stupidity and bad generalship. That was a sentence that was added simply for effect, and falsely palmed off as coming from General Grant."

"General Grant upbraided General Hovey in his action then," the reporter said.

"He most certainly did, as any one who reads his book can see. His very plain statement that Hovey remained on the field with his troops bleeding and wounded. He afterward exhibited his admiration for General Hovey's military courage by recommending that he be appointed major-general. General Sherman also signed the recommendation, and any man who is indorsed by those two great men can certainly stand the slanders of a few Democratic liars who know no more about military tactics than if they had never been born."

"Are the statements of the Democrats generally believed?"

"Why, as a matter of fact they cannot be believed by any sensible man. If there was any truth in the charges, there is no reason in the world why they have not been brought up before. Not a word was said about them when General Hovey ran for Congress, and even at the time of the battle, and immediately following it, it was not censured by a single word of condemnation."

I was informed yesterday, by a letter from Madison, that a citizen of that place named John G. Grier, the mayor of the city, strongly denied that they had made any statements to the effect that General Hovey ever played the part of a coward. Both of them have been and are still life-long Democrats. I understand that W. R. Myers, Democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor, made a speech a few nights ago in Madison in which he said that he admired Gen. Hovey, that he had no objections to him except that he was a politician, and that he was a man who, as a soldier and a general, had a record unblemished by any rash or cowardly act."

"Have you talked with General Hovey about the matter?"

"Yes, I saw him to-day and remarked in a half-jocular way that he had been accused of turning his back to the enemy at Champion Hills. He gave a long, hearty laugh, and said that so far as he was concerned the lie wouldn't trouble him. I regard the charges as the most outrageous effort that the Democrats have yet made to catch the drowning man's straw. That is all it is; they have nothing else to say, and they must say something, but I am sure I am confident that not a single man who was under Hovey's whole command, and who were one regiment in his division, or any man, either Democrat or Republican, who is acquainted with the correct historical fact, will believe a word of what has been alleged. I could not say too much of General Hovey as a soldier and as a man, and in this I do not stand alone. There are men by the hundreds, irrespective of party, who will heartily second every word I would say."

Gen. W. J. Landrum, of Lexington, Ky., who was with General Hovey during the Vicksburg campaign, writes to the Journal: "Among the many distinguished officers who served in the Army of the Tennessee, none was more popular or more universally respected than General Hovey. He commanded the division that bore the brunt of the battle of Champion Hills, and if the corps to which he belonged, or a reasonable portion of it, had been sent to his support, in addition to the assistance furnished him from McPherson's corps, Pemberton's army would have suffered a rout, and the siege of Vicksburg have been averted. In consequence of the great loss sustained by Hovey's division in the engagement, it was left encamped on the field of battle, to look after the wounded and take charge of the prisoners. It was not long, however, before it took its place in the line of the besieging army, where it remained until the close of the siege."

"The morning of the 22d of May was the time for the assault upon the works at Vicksburg, and while standing upon an eminence, in the rear of my brigade, that overlooked the confederate line for a long distance on our right and left, General Hovey came up the hill on foot and stood by my side. The hour 10 was the time the assaulting column was to start, and we were looking at my watch so as to be on time in giving the order to advance. Not a flag could be seen upon the confederate works, nor were there any evidences that there was a single soldier in the rifle-pits. The general remarked to me that he believed they had evacuated the city, and would give us no fight. An old building on fire in the suburbs of the place served to strengthen our convictions that they had abandoned the place. A few moments later convinced us of our error, for the enemy had only been keeping under cover to avoid the force of our artillery and to be ready for the terrible assault they knew was certainly following. When the assaulting column was within close rifle range, all the flags around their line went up, and a deadly fire was poured upon our troops from every direction. It was brought Gen. Hovey to my side, and he was somewhat of a mystery to me at the time, but I found out afterward that his desire to participate in the engagement was such that he could not be kept in the rear, and came to the front and asked to be assigned to duty in some capacity, and General McClernand placed him in command of all the artillery of the Tenth Army Corps during the assault. He performed his duty nobly, and won additional honors by his courageous conduct and admirable management of the forces under his command."

The Prospects Fair.

Col. Thos. H. Nelson, of Terre Haute, electoral-large on the Republican ticket for the State, was in the city last night, en route for a series of engagements in Hamilton county, where he will make campaign speeches. Mr. Nelson has just returned from a two weeks' canvass in Washington, Davies, Knox and Montgomery counties, and reports the prospects of Republican success as the most hopeful that could be expected. "If I have been engaged in campaign work for over thirty years," he said to a Journal reporter last night, "and never have I been so deeply impressed with the hopeful outlook that faces the Republican party in Indiana to-day. Everybody seems to be working hard, as if he realized that in this campaign the question at issue is one that will live forever if it conquers, and if it is defeated the inevitable result will be four years and probably more of the same kind of wretched administration we have been subjected to since 1884. But it is my opinion that the people are beginning to see the real danger, and they will not leave a stone unturned to escape it."

"Is the party harmonious?"

"Without a doubt, the Republican party is today in the most harmonious condition in Indiana that it has been for years. I do not remember the time when there was more unity. The men seem to be working shoulder to shoulder, and there is no more going to win."

"You think the party is sure of success in the State, then?"

"I do not believe there is any question about it. We have a ticket which has been long and equalled, and not only are the men at its head men whose characters are unblemished, but they are men who fought for their country and liberty. There will be no larger soldier vote polled in Indiana this year than has ever been cast for years. The labor vote will be an immense one, too. I hear every day of accessions to the Republican party from men who were either Democrats or mugwumps in 1884."

"Is General Hovey's nomination received with enthusiasm in the southern counties?"

"The enthusiasm there exhibited is remarkable. General Hovey's record during the civil war will win him hundreds of votes, upon which the Democratic leaders are depending. Coupled with General Harrison's war record, we have a combination in our State and national ticket that cannot be touched."

"What is thought of the charges made against General Hovey at Champion Hills?"

"I have but one thing to say about them. Anybody who knows General Hovey or has read his history so far as it was connected with the late war, can readily see that they are nothing but malicious lies, manufactured by the Democratic party for campaign purposes. General Grant, in his book, even went so far as to give General Hovey the majority of the credit for the success at Champion Hills, and a man like that is certainly a fool or an idiot who would give any credence to a denial of those words."

Campaign Speakers.

The Republican State central committee has pretty nearly completed its roster of campaign speakers. It has already made 148 appointments for speakers from outside of this State, some of whom, however, will not be here until after the Maine election, next week. In addition to these outside speakers there are over 2,000 local speakers in the State who can be called on for an address on any occasion. They number from three to fifty-eight in each county, and the State central committee has obtained the names of all of them. Many of them are orators of ability, and in any event they are no danger of the State being piping for want of good political preaching during this and the next month.

On the Democratic side Colonel Matson will start out to-day with a speech at his home, Greencastle. On next Monday he goes on a tour through the southern part of the State, speaking at Paoli, New Albany, English, Huntington, Rockport, Linton, City, Booneville, Clay City, LaPorte, Kokomo, Worthington, Marion and Winchester. Some comment has been created by the fact that the Governor has been assigned to the larger towns while Senator Matson is taking in the smaller places. The only conclusion to be derived is that the Colonel is not considered as able to fight his own battles as Governor Gray is, and that he is being assigned to the smaller towns to give him the opportunity to show his worth.

Senator Voorhees has been assigned the following appointments:

September 10—At Lafayette, night.

September 11—At Evansville, night.

September 12—At Shoals.

September 13—At Booneville.

September 14—At Clay City.

September 15—At Columbus.

Senator Turpie will speak as follows:

September 24—At Hillsboro.

September 25—At Vincennes.

September 26—At Ellettsburg.

September 27—At LaPorte.

October 1—At Valparaiso.

October 2—At Ellettsburg.

October 3—At North Bend.

October 4—At North Manchester.

The only date thus far fixed for Judge Allen G. Grier, who is running for mayor of Madison, is at Shelbyville Oct. 15. Governor Gray, Colonel Matson and others will be present and speak.

The Democracy of Miami county are preparing for a barbecue at Peru, at which it is expected that Judge Thurman will be present, and he will probably be allowed to fix the date. The Democracy of Miami county are preparing to have Judge Thurman participate in a number of other meetings at the larger points in the State.

Senator Thomas F. Grady, of New York, the well-known Tammany orator, will speak in this city next Monday night, en route to California to take part in the campaign on the Pacific coast.

A Good Campaign Document.

A campaign document that is expected to be a favorite one has been issued by the State central committee in the shape of a four-page circular containing extracts from speeches made by General Harrison upon the Irish question. The committee have 100,000 copies of the pamphlet in their hands, and they will be distributed throughout the State, where they are most needed. General Harrison has always been a staunch, true friend of Ireland in its struggle for home rule, and the extracts from his speeches will be read with interest and pleasure by all Irish-Americans and their friends.

The Griffiths Guards.

A meeting will be held at the Criminal Court room, this evening, at 7 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing the Griffiths Guards. The name is chosen as an expression of appreciation of the fact that a representative young man has been placed on the State ticket. It is the intention to hold mass-meetings of young men under the auspices of the organization, and also to accompany Mr. Griffiths to some of the adjoining towns where he has appointments to speak.

Political Notes.

Frank McCray addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting at Ellettsburg, Thursday evening. The speaker was listened to with close attention, and was frequently applauded.

In a letter to a friend in this city, Dr. A. G. Compton, of Seward, Neb., states that the Republican party is gaining in strength every day. He further relates the high opinion that R. S. Norval, the member of the notification committee from Nebraska, formed concerning Indiana during his stay here. He was wonderfully impressed with the enthusiasm with which the nomination was received, and he has repeated the story time and time again to his friends in Nebraska.

The Republicans of the Seventh ward held one of the largest and most enthusiastic local meetings last night that have been held since the campaign opened. Harrison T. Tinsler, W. A. Van Buren and a colored speaker from Pittsburg, Pa., were the principal speakers. Mr. Smith is a forcible speaker, and is well versed in the issues of the day. He has been sent West by the national committee to strain Indiana, and he will remain until the second week in October.

THEY WILL HOLD TO THEIR PLANS.

A Line Will Be Built by the McNeal Company If It Requires a Life Time to Do It.

The friends and patrons of the McNeal movement are becoming a little down-hearted at the restrictions laid upon the ordinance by the Common Council and Board of Aldermen. But, notwithstanding this, they insist that they will persevere, and, unless finally and effectually deprived of any right of way whatever, they will lay track and operate a line, if it is only a block in length. "The Council and Board of Aldermen are simply trying to squeeze us out of existence," remarked J. C. Bush, the attorney for the McNeal movement, last night. "But unless they kill us entirely we don't intend to give up. The simple fact is that the men who compose the government of this city are dead against the introduction of a new mode of transit, but they will bring improvement or business. They have plainly demonstrated that fact within the last thirty days. They all seem to be men with judgment, but they have a scheme that they are letting a monopoly set a firm grip on the city they are elected to protect."

"What does your company intend to do?" the reporter asked.

"We are awaiting the action of the aldermen next Monday night. At their last meeting they slashed us up so much that they hardly left anything, and we expect some more. Their scheme is to cut us up so much by restrictions and amendments that we will not care to exist as a corporate body any longer. But I can say that we mean business, and if we ever get a foothold at all, we will build up a line that will show the people just what we mean. It is an expensive undertaking, for one car alone will cost $2,500, and it is estimated that each mile of track will require two cars for passage. But, cost or no cost, all we ask is a fair show, and we will exhibit our powers after that is granted."

Plumbers Getting Rich.

The plan to illuminate the city by natural-gas displays is still being carried out by the Board of Trade committee. At a recent meeting sub-committees were appointed to solicit the citizens for private displays on the principal business streets, and the proposition met with almost universal favor. Bids were next advertised for the price to be received from the various companies for which gas would be furnished. But here the work came to a standstill, and there it has remained, for the plumbers of this city are so overworked with work that there can be no estimate on the matter. "We are ready to begin putting up the arches," said Judge Martindale last night, "but we can't get any of the plumbers to make an estimate on the matter. They are so busy that they can't spare a man to do it. I am talking to one to-day, and he informed me that all the plumbers of the city are so overworked that they can't spare a man to do it. I have heard that the demand cannot be supplied. He informed me that upon the city display work estimates could be furnished in a week or ten days at least, and that that would be a month before the work could be begun. But as we can wait, we intend to begin work. The whole matter is in the hands of the plumbers, and as soon as they can commence operations we will begin, too."

Nye, of New York, otherwise known as "Bill Nye," dined at the Tremont House last evening, on his way to Minneapolis, where he will respond to a toast at a banquet of Minnesota newspaper men, which will be given this evening to-day being newspaper day at the exposition. Afterward Mr. Nye will take a couple of weeks' vacation in the northern woods. He had with him the proof of the new book which is to be shortly issued jointly by himself and James Whitcomb Riley. It is entitled "Nye and Riley's Railway Guide," and consists of a number of humorous sketches.

Death of an Old Pressman.

Thomas D. Warner, an old-time pressman, died yesterday morning at his home on Peru street. He was pressman for the Journal in 1853, when a single-cylinder press was sufficient to work off its edition, and remained with the paper in that capacity until 1875, with the exception of two years spent in Lafayette. He was afterwards employed on the Evening News for eleven years, giving way to his son on account of paralysis, which finally caused his death. He also had charge, while in the employ of the Journal, of the first perforating press brought into the State. His wife and five children survive him. The deceased was a member of the Knights of Honor, and will be buried by that organization on Sunday.

ODD DESIGNS

A neat design in sleeve links is of silver in mottled oxidized finish. On one end are two curb-chain pattern links, and a hollow twist bar does duty on the other. But this is only one of many. There is no end to the shapes and patterns in which sleeve buttons are worked in all materials. The same might be said of all similar small articles of adornment—pins, clasps, rings and so forth and so on. It is an interesting and instructive pastime to inspect them. Come do so.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

ABSOLUTELY PURE.

For quick raising, the Royal Baking Powder is superior to all other leavening agents. It is absolutely pure and wholesome and of the highest leavening power. It is always uniform in strength and quality and never fails to make light, sweet, most palatable and nutritive food. Bread, biscuits, muffins, cake, etc., raised with Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot without distressing results to the most delicate digestive organs. It will keep in any climate without deterioration.

Prof. H. A. Mott, U. S. Government Chemist, after examining officially the principal baking powders of the country, reported:

"The Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure, for I have so found it in many tests made both for that company and the United States Government."

"Because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public."
